

A photograph of a three-story brick building at dusk. The building features a mix of window styles: small square windows on the top floor, arched windows on the middle floor, and large rectangular windows on the ground floor. Warm interior lights are visible through the windows, and exterior wall sconces provide additional illumination. A central glass entrance door offers a view into the interior. The sky is a deep blue with some light clouds. The text 'THE LIGHT BAR' is overlaid in large white letters across the middle of the image.
